LOUIS — With another loss for the St. Louis Rams this season, it is increasingly evident that

Coach Jeff Fisher doesn't have the right men to lead the team to the playoffs. They are missing confidence in the huddle. They aren't focusing. They are showing a lack of commitment. They are making mistakes in the secondary. They don't have the size. They don't have the depth. They don't have the smarts. They don't have the veteran leadership. They don't have the edge. What they do have is a dangerous offense and an even more deadly defense. The team that won Sunday night's 17-14 victory at San Diego has lost four consecutive games. The offense is looking more like the team that lost 31-23 at Kansas City in Week 1. The defense is looking like the team that was shredded by the Atlanta Falcons, 38-7, in Week 4. The Rams play the Seattle Seahawks in Seattle next Sunday at 5 p.m. It's already a bad matchup for St. Louis because Seattle has one of the NFL's best offenses. And the Seahawks have a great defense. They're averaging an NFL-high 31.3 points a game. On Sunday, the Rams started sluggish, were never able to get going and were down 14-0. The defense looked sluggish. The Rams were smacked in the mouth again. And they did nothing to fight back. Seattle scored 17 points in the first half and 27 points in the third quarter. They had more points than the Rams had combined in the first, second and third quarters. The Rams never had a chance to make a move. They never had a chance to rally. The ca3bfb1094
