Cracked my super lite edition now I will guide you on how to download and install it on ubuntu 14.04.0: Javascript Highlight Code Openly? Some of the javascript I am working with uses a recursive method, and the javascript must be used within the DOM for it to work. This works great, but my problem is that I need to be able to actually see which lines of code were being executed while I was researching the issue in the DOM. When I use Chrome's 'inspector' it highlights the code, but nothing appears on the web page. I am sure I can color the code, but the recursion is required for me to understand it. What's the best way to do this? NOTE: I don't care if people use Google to view it, or any of
